Part 1:

Please explain how your personal background, academic journey and professional or life experiences have prepared you to become an agent of change. Rather than merely stating your interest in the field, you are encouraged to demonstrate your thought process. The essay must be entirely your own work (400 – 650 words).

Part 2: Short-Answer Question

Our program cultivates leaders who are critical thinkers, proactive doers, and visionary innovators. To help us see your unique perspective and ambition. Please answer one of the following three questions (150 to 200 words):

1. Identify a specific public space or ecosystem in your community that is underperforming or neglected. What single, critical intervention would you propose to begin its transformation, and why?
2. Describe a real-world scenario where the needs of 'People' (e.g., housing, economic development) and 'Nature' (e.g., habitat preservation, ecological function) appear to conflict. How would you, as a landscape architect, begin to reframe the problem to find a solution where both can thrive?
3. Our students are empowered to launch new initiatives. If you were given the resources to start one green enterprise or non-profit project today, what pressing problem would it solve?
